Helen Benedict, the playwright, created these seven monologues from interviews she conducted for her book, THE LONELY SOLDIER: THE PRIVATE WAR OF WOMEN SERVING IN IRAQ (Beacon Press, 2009.) Most of the monologues come from taped interviews, but some are combined with letters the soldiers wrote by e-mail. All are in the actual words of the soldiers. The marching cadences are also all those actually used by soldiers and marines. No words in this play are fictionalized.

Hard-hitting war drama from women soldiers' perspectives

By Jeanne-Marie Zeck

This play is a hard-hitting series of real-life accounts of military service by U.S. women who experienced war conditions, combat, often sexual harassment, and sometimes sexual assault from their own comrades. There is no glory in this play. It shows the underbelly of the U.S. military and the long-term effects on individuals who served.
